John Hill Stands His Trial and Escapes.

WRIGHT AGAIN IN THE TOILS.

The Evidence Given Against Rim by Sarah Kevada Lewis - "He Is My Child's Father."

Jusciph Dean appeared in the Third District court yesterday to be tried under an indistance dearring him with unlawful co-habitation. He had previously entered a site of set guilty, but stepped forward and announced that he desired to change it to one of guilty. He was allowed that privilege, and Mr. Mayle then asked that the date of sentence be fixed one month hence. Such article would be a great favor for the defendant, who would be embled to leave its family in hetter circumstances during his enforced absonce from them.

Mr. Peters had no objection to a reason able time being given. He did, however, thin one month was very only measurable. He would not object to a couple of weeks. The indictment was a very old use, and the disfendant, he thought, had had sufficient that the prepare for the inevitable.

Mr. Moyle suggested that the defendant had but lately been arrested.

Mr. Petres That is not our fault.

Mr. Moyle —Well, it was not his. He has been away—out of the century.

I had never been improperly lutimate with any man or boy before Wright came to my bed. I knew that Mrs. Wright was sleeping in the addolning rooms. Weight swakened me and asked me if he could go to bed with me. I objected are strugglest, but to no purpose. He remained with me about an hour. Mrs. Wright is very hard of hearing, and I do not know whether she heard, as or not. Wright begreed me not to say anything, about it, and I told him! I wouldn't if he didn't attempt to repeat it. I shut the door that night, but did not look it. He came to me, again the next night. He was there about an hour that time. I was too harly frightened to think of awakening the little girl. He had intercourse with me that right. I spoke to Wright the next day about what he had done. I have spoke to myone else about it for a long it lime. My haby was born at Mrs. Wesley's in the Third wash. Father was there alwed. Father was the child was born. I did not tell them who was the father of my child. I dold them it was some other man, and I did this because Wright wanted me to say nothing about it. I man in Mrs. Wesley's in the Third wash father of my child. AMUSEMENTS.

The theatre held a very light gathering down stairs last evening-above, the at-tendance was fair. Mattle Vickers was the attraction, and almost all the attraction there was; she is a bright, piquant, little woman, a good dresser a charming manner, a lively dancer, and a voice with a busk in it which, whether it came from a cold or from nature, interfered materially with her attempts at singiny. The only member of the support deserving mention was Mr. Rich, who has many of the trails of a good burlesque artist; but uside from the star and Mr. Rich there was considerable of a dreary waste. The piece is bright in spots, but it is too long and talky to please any except the habitness of the gallery, from whem the greater part of the laughter and applainse proceeded.
